Research and Experience Translated Into Grazing Practices You Can Use NOW!

Your Free, Weekly, Online Magazine

There's a lot of information out there to sift through and, without spending lots of time reading and listening to others, it's hard for a grazer to decide what to do.

With On Pasture, we've changed that. We sift through the piles of research and grazing practices, and translate them into ideas and the steps for using them right away.

Edited by Kathy Voth and Rachel Gilker, On Pasture is written by some of the most well-known names in grazing. Each week you'll find something you can use whether it's Grazing Management, Pasture Health, Livestock, or Money Matters. Then we add some food for thought in Consider This, and give you a laugh with The Funnies.

Our Readers Say...

"I like the format and ideas presented in the magazine. It is a big help in making decisions about my farm."

"Lots and lots of information I can access easier and read quickly."

"We like the innovative and practical advice you bring us from yourself and others that encourage us to break away from starve to death traditional agricultural practices."

"I really appreciate the broadly accessible writing that turns complicated science into understandable language."

"I get inspiration from the underlying sense of community that holds the articles together. A pervasive sense of humor is a plus too."
